You may remember, back in early 2020, we delivered a series of webinars providing guidance on how to navigate the 'black swan' event (COVID-19). Jim Tompkins, David Poirier, Jim Dobson, and others provided very useful insights and perspectives on how to lead and navigate through 'storms' of unprecedented magnitude.

We've all managed through the 'pandemic storm', although we still contend with 'after shock waves', and there are many things about organizations and people that have changed, perhaps irrevocably. As we enter another 'storm' (economic, global, industry specific volatility, complexity, risk, uncertainty, ambiguity), we've asked these integrated systems engineering thought leaders to refresh and share their perspectives and guidance.

We look forward to continuing to serve you through ongoing insightful leadership topics and presentations.
